

Trinity Centre for Digital Humanities

Digital Scholarship and Skills Module Assessment

PhD candidates attending the Digital Scholarship and Skills Module workshop series may do so on either an 'a la carte' (where participants have an interest in a single or multiple sessions), or as a 5 ECTS module to be applied to the thought course requirements in a structured PhD. Details of the assessment requirements are as follows:

5 ETCS = 100 student effort hours

To accrue the 5 ECTS, participants will be expected to attend each of the four workshops and to complete the course assessments. Workshop participation will be assessed as a module in the following manner:

- A. Participation in all four workshops: 16 contact hours (40% contribution to final mark).
- B. A series of reflective blog posts (up to 500 words each) on each of the workshops. This assessment requires writing up to a maximum of 2000 words: (25% contribution to final mark)
BP1 due 13/11 (Assessing Digital Scholarship), BP2 due 27/11 (Digital Scholarly Editing), BP3 due 18/12 (Web Technologies), BP4 due 22/12 (GIS).
- C. Literature review (up to 1500 words) of one of the topics covered in the workshop series: (15% contribution to final mark) due 8/01/18.
- D. Individual 7 min lightning presentation detailing how one of the workshop topics could be applied to your research: (20% contribution to final mark) due the first week of the Hilary Term.